Every day we use and interact with devices that use artificial intelligence, but to most of us the concepts of AI and machine learning are cryptic. With the right resources, you can learn and teach AI with confidence. Maryland educator, Nora Burkhauser, gave us some tactical ideas for how AI lessons can be incorporated into your classroom. You can bring AI to life for your students with a little help from these (free!) resources.
Certiport competitions 101

Student competitions bring technology certifications to life for your students, provide them with a positive platform to showcase their skills, and give them a unique opportunity to earn valuable rewards and recognition.

Join us today, January 26th at 4 PM ET, to dive into the competitions. Dominique Gousse, Certiport Competitions Manager, will outline everything you need to know about the annual Certiport Microsoft Office Specialist (MOS) and Adobe Certified Professional student competitions. You’ll learn who can participate, how you can encourage your students to get involved, what they’ll experience, and how you can help them make the most of these fun and educational events.

Discover the benefits of project management skills

A report issued by the Project Management Institute (PMI) found that there will be a demand for 25 million project management professionals globally by 2030. That translates to roughly 2.3 million new project management positions a year.

Join our second CERTIFIED Academy webinar Wednesday, February 1st at 4 PM ET. We’ll sit down with NYC educator, Noam Bonkowski, to discuss the value of project management skills for today’s students. Whether your students aspire to a career in project management or not, find out how they can benefit from project management teaching.

Empowering girls to code

Preparing today’s female students for careers in IT is of paramount importance.

A recent study by the American Enterprise Institute discovered that less than 20% of computer science graduates are women, a decrease over the last several decades from over 35% in the mid-1980s.

Former educator, Jennifer Brown, shares her thoughts on why girls are less likely to pursue careers in coding and IT, how educators can encourage female students to delve into the world of coding, and what resources educators can use to help bring coding to life.
