Changes Coming for the MOS Program

Microsoft has recently updated the branding of its Office 365 software. In addition, Certiport has discovered some difficulty on the part of candidates in identifying which Microsoft Office Specialist exam they are looking for when they sit to take the test, because the two most recent versions of the exams have different naming formats. As a result, we are updating the names of the exams for the two most recent versions of the Microsoft Office Specialist program. Please note that only the exam names are changing—not the exam content. These updates will be taking place on January 14th, 2021.

Introducing the Unity Certified User: Artist Exam

Certiport and Unity Technologies are excited to announce the release of the new Unity Certified User (UCU) Artist certification.

This exam focuses on 2D and 3D digital artistry within Unity software to create interactivity in games, apps, AR/VR, and other experiences while measuring a candidate's ability to manage the basic aspects of dealing with art assets and familiarity with the Unity art pipeline. Successful completion will also demonstrate that students are competent in importing and working with 2D and 3D assets, placing and designing levels, and using tools within Unity to assist in experience creation.

Earning this level of certification while in school gives students confidence as they continue to master other interactive content creation skills and pursue additional certifications in the future.

The Artist exam is now available, with GMetrix practice tests and additional learning resources to follow.
