QuickBooks Program Name Change

Since 2010 Certiport has been proud to offer the QuickBooks Desktop and QuickBooks Online Certified User certification. In 2021, Intuit and Certiport will launch two new certifications that will expand our Intuit sponsored exams beyond just the QuickBooks software. With this expansion, the program name of QuickBooks will no longer fit the Intuit sponsored certifications. We will be updating the name and logo of the QuickBooks program to be the Intuit certification program on March 31st, 2021. The Intuit certification program will still include the QuickBooks Certified User certifications as well as any other Intuit sponsored certifications. Please reach out to your Certiport Territory Manager if you have any questions or concerns about this name change.

Apple Announces New App Development with Swift Certifications

Apple announces two new App Development with Swift certifications to recognize foundational knowledge of Swift and Xcode. The new App Development with Swift Associate and App Development with Swift Certified User certifications are based on the Develop in Swift Explorations and Develop in Swift Fundamentals courses to help students stand out for high-demand jobs in iOS app development. Available through an exam administered by Certiport, App Development with Swift certifications demonstrate that students are ready to take the next step in becoming app developers.

App Development with Swift Level 1 aligned to Xcode 9 will be retired on September 30, 2021. Customers with licenses for the App Development with Swift Level 1 exam will have six months (March 31-September 30, 2021) to use licenses before its official retirement. And, if you currently have licenses for the App Development with Swift Level 1 exam, you can use your licenses for the App Development with Swift Certified User now or App Development with Swift Associate starting in June.
